

Community Library Initiative

School for Democracy-Loktantrashala

Location - Loktantrashala, Bhim, Rajasthan

Duration - 4 weeks(minimum)

We are looking for enthusiastic individuals who are willing to help us with our community libraries. A library for the children has been set up by School for Democracy (SFD) in Bhim, another in a small village called Dhapara and one on campus. These spaces are regularly visited by a large number of students from nearby areas and various activities are organized. However we are a small team and it would be great to have more people to organize activities and together draft a plan to make the spaces more lively and useful.

The internship programme offers a rich experience of understanding and experiencing rural life, and would facilitate an interaction with rural communities. It is an opportunity to give the children in these areas new experiences and engage them with the joy of books. The libraries are not solely reading spaces, but places the community associates with fun, learning and play.

We have been donated assorted books for the library on campus. We need people who are fluent with English and Hindi to sort out the books as well as help us put them in order.

For any further information please feel free to write to us at loktantrashala@gmail.com. We look forward to having you with us at School for Democracy.